5. The principle of passive and Active vocabulary
6. The principle of motivation
7. The principle of grouping
8. Principal of sequencing
9. The Principal of Learning by doing
10. The principle of Accuracy and corectness
11. The principle of correlation with life
12. The principles of using mother tongue.

Point 2 Factors affecting second language learning: Developmental Factor ,Socio-economic and Psychological factors

Developmental Factor - Age, Aptitude,motivation intelligence,learning style,personality

- Age - Age is one of the factory that influence second language learning. It is generally believed that children are better. at language acquisition than adult In child development, there is a period during which language can be acquired. more easily than that at any other timer
- Aptitude - Aptitude refers to specific ability a learner has for learning a second language explains that aptitude is natural ability to learn a language. It is an ability that allows to learn a second language faster and with less effort.

- Motivation - Motivation is one of the most important factor in second language learning. It is obvious that learner who went to learn are likely to achieve more than those who do not. Motivation is distinguished into two parts: intrinsic (Internal) and extrinsic (external).
- Intelligence - Intelligence is general ability to master academic skills. Intelligence is defined and measured in terms of linguistic and logical mathematical abilities. Studies show a strong relationship between intelligence and acquisition of a foreign language but only as far as academic skills are concerned.
- Learning styles - Learning style is also called Cognitive Style. It is the particular way in which a learner tries to learn something.
- Personality - Personality has been described as a set of features that characterize an individual. It has been stated that Piaget's concept is difficult to define and measure because of its complicated nature.

Socio-economic

- Learner's attitude towards the second language and the learning opportunities learned can obtain determine by their social economic classes are two of the important variables

- Specific Social factors that can affect second Language learning includes age, gender etc.

Psychological factors

1. Most of the other psychological factors
2. Fear of making mistakes.
3. Felling shy
4. Felling hesitated.
5. Lack of confidence while speaking English These factors make the second language difficult to learn.

POINT -3 Teaching of English at the elementary level with reference to National Curriculum Framework-2005 and Bihar Curriculum Framework-2008

- Curriculum framework is a policy document that specifies the nature and direction of education in a particular society. It may be designed for the national and state level. It provides suggestive guidelines on defining the aims and objectives of education, the requisite nature of contents, methods of teaching-learning and principles of assessment and evaluation. The guidelines of NCF-2005 framed in the light of the well-known report 'Learning Without Burden' has shifted the focus from the teacher to the learners, confining the teacher to the role of facilitator only.
- The NCF-2005 recognises learners as the constructor of knowledge and sees multilingualism as a strength in the classroom

❖ The key guiding principles of NCF-2005 are:

1. Connecting knowledge to the life outside the school.
2. Ensuring that learning is shifted away from rote methods.

3. Enriching the curriculum to provide for overall development of children rather than confining it to the textbook.
4. Making examinations more flexible and integrated with classroom experience.
5. Nurturing the identity of the child by caring concerns within the democratic polity of the country.
 - The National Curriculum Framework 2005 lays stress on the use of child's mother tongue as a medium of learning at the primary level. At the same time, English should be taught in an appropriate manner to enable the child to acquire sufficient proficiency in the language. As per the National Curriculum Framework 2005, English should also continue to be one of the languages for learning activities that create the child's awareness of the world.

❖ Teaching English at the elementary level with reference to Bihar Curriculum Framework- 2008:

- BCF-2008 primarily shares the vision of NCF 2005. It aims to achieve a reformed contextual paradigm which could help children connect their classroom learning with the requirement of their life. It emphasises over the need of associative classroom strategies which could connect English learning in close proximity with the culture and challenges of Bihar.
- English teachers should help children developing their proficiency to talk about themselves and their surroundings. Children should be able to follow instructions, simple questions and request in English. Reading and recognising letters and basic words in print along with the ability to comprehend their meaning is significant. English teachers must help children getting familiar with basic English vocabulary and expression

❖ The significant tenets of BCF-2008:

1. Nurturing a child to grow into an informed, capable and conscientious citizen imbued with social concerns.
2. Connecting classroom learning to the locale, society & life of Bihar.
3. Reorienting classroom pedagogy with the geographic, socio-political and economic challenges of Bihar.
4. Redesigning textbooks and teaching-learning strategies for promoting a constructive critical outlook.
5. Re-inventing classroom and examinations to aid the process of learning.

POINT -4 Understanding the Curriculum-syllabus-textbook of English in Bihar at primary level

- There is close relationship between curriculum, syllabus and textbook. Curriculum is the totality of experience provided to the child. It covers all the activities and arrangements made by the institution throughout the academic year to facilitate the learners and the instructors.
- The goals for a second language curriculum are two-fold:
 1. Attainment of a basic proficiency, such as it is acquired in natural language learning.
 2. The development of language into an instrument or abstract thought and knowledge acquisition through literacy.

❖ Curriculum

- The term 'curriculum' has been derived from a Latin word "Course' or a 'currere' which means runway to reach a goal. a Trace' on which one runs.

- Accordingly, a curriculum is the instructional. and the educative programme by following which the pupils achieved their goals, ideals, and aspirations of life..
- Curriculum is a standard-based sequence of planned experiences where students practice and achieve proficiency in content and applied learning skills- curriculum is the central guide for all educators as to what is essential for teaching and learning, so that every student has access to rigorous academic experiences.

❖ Syllabus

- The Syllabus is described as the summary of the topics covered by units to be taught in the particular subject. Syllabus varies from teacher to teacher.
- A Syllabus Let's Students know that the course is about why the course is taught where it is going and what will be. required for them to be successful in the Course.
- In Bihar, the children of elementary level who follow the SCERT syllabus are mostly from rural background and with little or no exposure to English language and its vocabulary. Therefore, special emphasis has been laid on oral drill based exercises and building vocabulary of the learners. Its contents are based on the themes taken from the immediate environment and socio-cultural background of the learners. Lessons of English textbook have been constructed with the aim of developing a sense of awareness towards their social and natural surroundings. It also includes the development of significant social and moral values.

❖ Difference between curriculum and syllabus.

curriculum	Syllabus
I. It is a complete thought. II. It is prescriptive. III. It prescribes the objectives. IV. It includes all the activities. V. It is applicable to the institutions.	I. It is a limited thought. II. It is descriptive. III. It describes to achieve the objective IV. I Syllabus is related with particular subject V. It is applicable to the class.

❖ Textbook (पाठ्य-पुस्तक).

- A book used in the study of a subject
- A textbook is a book that contains comprehensive information about a course or a subject that a student needs, to get through the academic year.
- This has a set of chapters, question-answer. and exercises included in the curriculum to improve the learning standards of e Student
- The book follows communicative and constructive approach to English language teaching and learning. Modern principles and methods have been followed especially in the selection, gradation and presentation of language items, sounds, words and structures. Numerous colourful and attractive pictures have been given to make the lessons interesting. Exercises have been designed to develop the thinking capacity of children.

POINT -5 Approaches for teaching of English

- An approach is concerned not only with 'how', but also 'what to teach'. It is a matter of principles derived from experience and is based on the psychological learning of the teaching-learning process

1. Behaviourist approach:

- Behaviorist approach views learning as a mechanical process. It lays emphasis on habit formation. This approach is based on the concept of 'shaping behaviour' with the help of environmental cues. The teacher controls the learning environment and the learners are expected to follow the instructions of the teacher.
- Learning is primarily associated with the repetitive pattern practice associated with suitable reinforcement strategies. Children repeating the alphabet A,B, C with the help of pictures, vocabulary practice, spelling drills, specific manners etc. are the common examples of behavioristic learning in which a specific behavioural.

❖ The main characteristics of Behaviouristic Approach:

1. Learning is defined as establishing a behavioural pattern based on the pre-defined set of objectives.
2. It is a repetitive process shaped through positive or negative reinforcement strategies.
3. Memorization and habit formation is the key of learning.
4. Audio-Lingual drills are significant to language learning.
5. Extensive repetition should be the part of classroom transaction which should be done with a contextual situation.

2. Grammar Translation Method

- It is the oldest and the most widely practised method of language teaching. The method advocates that 'Grammar is the soul of language'. One should learn the details of the sound system (phonology), word-structure (morphology), and sentence structures (syntax) to be efficient in using the language correctly. Thus, major duration of classroom transaction is focused on helping children understand the rules of vocabulary and sentence structures

❖ The major characteristics of this method are:

1. Teacher centric classrooms.
2. Use of mother tongue in classroom.
3. Reading-writing exercises are primarily focused.
4. Studying grammatical rules of words and sentence formation. Memorising vocabulary and translating text into English are the regular features of classroom transaction. Little possibility of lively communication or asking questions.

3. Audio-Lingual drill

- This method primarily supports behaviouristic concept of learning. It believes that language is a habitual behaviour and is best learnt in its natural way of listening and speaking (the way we learn our first language). Repeating a pattern, forms strong association of habitual learning. The method observes following steps of classroom transaction:
1. Teacher has to prepare and present an ideal pattern of well-articulated material. The teacher can use any resource to make its presentation effective like: tape recorder, comics, role-play etc.
 2. Students need to hear the model presentation and repeat it with appropriate modulation.
 3. As next step they practice substitutions in the pattern drills (key words or phrases in the dialogue).
 4. The drill exercise has to continue, till the student achieves perfection in that task. The stage ensures repetition of the response till it is learnt.

5. Once the learner becomes successful, he moves to the next learning task, otherwise the repetitive drill exercise continues

4. Structural approach

- The structural approach means the arrangement of Words in such a way as to form a suitable pattern of sentence. The mastery of sentence structure is considered to be more with that the acquisition of vocabulary. In structural approach, content words are also taught. The selection of content word is directed by their usefulness simplicity and teaching ability.
- An appropriate situation should be created to practice the structure and to relate its meaning to it and to build up a vocabulary of content words even structures is separately taught.

❖ Aspects of structural approach:

1. It is the order of words in a pattern that makes true meaning clear.
2. It lays a lot of emphasis on the use of function or structural words.
3. It gives due importance to forming of language habits.
4. It regards speech as more important than reading and writing.
5. Speech is the necessary means of fixing firmly all ground work

5. Communicative approach

- Communicative language teaching makes use of real-life situation that require communication. Classroom tasks equip students with the skills necessary for communication in this context. The teacher first sets up situations that the students are likely to face in real life. For example, organising market activity, a role play set up of restaurant, stationery shop, book store, police station, hospital, post office, bank, railway enquiry etc.

❖ The main characteristics of communicative approach are:

1. The role of the teacher is that of facilitator and guide.
2. Opportunities to reflect learners' ideas.
3. Engaging the learners in meaningful interactions and construction of meaning.
4. Use of ICT to make classroom more interesting and communicative

6. Cognitive approach

- Cognitive approach involves the process of acquiring knowledge through 'holistic perception'. It prompts the use of reasoning and intuitive perception. Unlike behaviourism, this approach considers language learning as a thoughtful process associated with the holistic experience and our ability of perception. It is a creative exercise not just the routine practice of selected structures. Instead of repetitive drills, it prefers to get children involved with puzzles, jumbling, picture comprehension etc.,
- Cognition refers to mental activity including thinking remembering, learning and using language. when we apply a cognitive approach to learning. and teaching we focus on the understanding of information and concepts.

7. Constructivist approach

- This approach believes that people construct their own knowledge on the basis of observation, understanding and experience. In this, students are engaged in some activity to gain knowledge rather than gaining knowledge passively.

- The term 'constructive' refers to an enriching environment which stimulates our cognition and provides variety of opportunities that influence the development of learners. According to Jean Piaget, our cognitive capacity improves through the successive stages of biological development. Each developmental stage has its own cognitive characteristic which should be supported by the environment

❖ The characteristics of the constructivist approach are:

1. It advocates for creating a supportive environment suitable to the developmental stage of the learner.
2. It believes in providing a supportive social structure where the learner gets involved in meaningful ways.
3. The teacher should develop appropriate steps of successive learning tasks which could lead the learner towards success.

Unit-2: Strategies of teaching Language skills: Listening and Speaking

POINT -1 Listening: sound recognition, pre-listening, while listening and post listening activities, syllable, stress, intonation and rhythm

❖ Listening Skill

- Listening comes first in the natural learning a way of language and forms the foundation for communicative competence in the new language.
- Listening is receiving language through ears. It is an aural input which involves a sender, a message and a receiver. When we listen to something, we have to identify sounds of speech and process them into words and sentences
- Listening is the process of receiving and Constructing meaning from and responding to spoken and / or non-verbal messages.

- Listening is one of the most important language skills, yet it never acquires a focused position in our general classroom planning. Thus, listening as a skill refers to the careful perception of sound and our ability to comprehend it in a meaningful context

Sound Recognition: -

- Listening and analyzing any sound may be a very simple thing to the human mind but it is an end product of a very complicated chain of events. A concept is formulated in the speaker's brain. When these organs of speech are set in motion, they create disturbances in air in the form of sound waves. These waves are received by the ears of the listener.

❖ Characteristics of good listeners:

- 1. Pays attention to the speech carefully with concentration.
- 2. Identifies the relationship of words and sentences in the speech.
- 3. Has a positive state of mind for listening and its comprehension.
- 4. Connects the listening text with his previous knowledge. pays attention to both verbal and non-verbal languages/behaviour.
- 5. Makes a good rapport and eye contact with the speaker.
- 6. Uses effective gestures and postures while listening.
- 7. Avoids the listening barriers such as physical, physiological and linguistic.
- 8. Is ready to listen for learning in any circumstance

❖ Strategies to focus Listening process

- These strategies can be divided into three Categories

1. Before Listening/pre-listening Activities:

- Pre-listening Activities are things learners do before a listening activity in order to prepare for listening. These activities have various purpose including pre- teaching or activating vocabulary, predicting content, generating interest and checking understanding of task. In the classroom pre-listening tasks include discussion questions, true or false statements, vocabulary Work, prediction tasks and brains storming the topic.

2. During / while listening Activities:

- During-listening tasks are a series of Activities that a learner' does while listening to a passage in order to show their understanding of what was heard of
- While - listening activities are what students are asked to do during the time that they are listening to the text. As far as listening comprehension (i.e. listening for meaning) is concerned, the purpose of While- listening activities is to help learner & develop the skill of eliciting message from spoken Language. While Listening tasks a series of language.a series of activities that learner does while listening to a passage in order to show they understanding of what was heard of While - interesting activities show be interesting, so that the students feel they want to listen and carry out the activities.

- ❖ Post listening activities: - Post listening activities embrace all the work related to a particular listening text (whether recorded or spoken the teacher) which are done after often the listening is completed. Some post-listening activities are extensions of the Work done at the pre -listing and While-listening stages and Some relate only loosely to the listening text itself.

❖ Syllable:- A syllable is a part of a word that contains a single vowel sound and that is pronounced as a unit so, for example:

- One syllable word - Big, black, book, cool etc.

- It is a great speaking activity which requires no resources and will help our learners build the skills of speaking. They need to maintain a conversation.

❖ Conveying information

- Conveying information is an interesting and effective way to improve listening and speaking skills in students.

POINT -3 Tools and techniques for assessment in English language

1. The teacher made and standardized test
2. Observation.
3. Checklist
4. Interview
5. Rating scale

POINT – 4 Learning Plan: Special emphasis on Listening and Speaking

- A lesson plan is a teacher's daily guide for what students need to learn, how it will be taught, and how learning will be measured.
 - Lesson plans help teachers be more effective in the classroom by providing a detailed outline to follow each class period.
 - A learning plan is a document that is used to plan- learning usually over an extended period of time.
1. Specific objectives
 2. General objectives
 3. Class room management
 4. Planning

5. Lesson expansion
6. summary
7. Evaluation question
8. Class work/ Home work
9. Self, evaluation

Point – 5 Learning Indicators for Listening and Speaking

❖ Learning Indicators for listening in Primary level

1. Listen to English words and sentences used in class school and responds in home. Language / English
2. follows different greetings and polite forms of expressions in English
3. Responds to English words and sentences, used in class / school in home language / English.
4. Show interest in listening to experiences. of her peers, and other in English and home language
5. Enjoy rhyme and rhythm of poems and sings aloud.
6. Listen to end engages in conversation with people from the community.
7. Takes dictation of small paragraphs, list of things etc.
8. comprehends narration, descriptions, speeches debates..

❖ Learning indicator for speaking

1. Talk about self using simple sentences in English and home language.
2. Uses words as per context. Looks at the Object and gives the words.
3. Talks about situation, pictures, Images in English and home language.
4. Ask questions about things around her
5. Looks at the pictures and tells the story in her words!"
6. Speak about situations in English and home

7. Asks questions about things around her.
8. Uses grammatically correct sentences to describe / narrate.

Unit-3 Strategies of Teaching Language Skills : Reading and writing

❖ Reading

- Reading is a perennial source of joy and amusement. It is a receptive skill through which we receive information. Reading develops our brain and polishes our understanding by providing a window into the world around us and helps the students to do better in all school subjects.
- Reading is an important part of learning English.
- Reading is the process of translating letters and other symbols into meaningful information for understanding and use in Every day life.

❖ There are mainly six types of reading-

- (1) Loud reading,
- (2) Silent reading,
- (3) Intensive reading,
- (4) Extensive reading,
- (5) Supplementary reading, and
- (6) Library reading.

❖ Loud Reading: Loud reading means reading a book by producing sound with correct pronunciation, stress and rhythm.

- ❖ This is known as oral reading also. It is introduced after two months of reading. This means that when pupils learn what they have to read in a book, it should be introduced. The objectives of loud reading are :

1. To enable students to read with correct pronunciation, articulating, intonation,

2. To enable students to read with expression.
3. To test students' knowledge of speaking words, phrases and sentences.
4. To give practice.
5. To understand the meaning
6. To prepare pupils for effective silent reading.

❖ Silent Reading :- Silent reading is a reading skill which allows one to read without voicing words. It encourages students to work for understanding. The aims of silent reading are pleasure and profit so that the students are able to read and get information.

1. Students are asked to read a passage.
2. They are abstained from making sound, whispering, murmuring or moving lips while reading.
3. Pupils do not stop at punctuation marks. The movement of their eyes only stops at difficult places.

❖ Aims of Silent Reading

1. To enable students to read without making sounds and moving lips, so they may not disturb others.
2. To enable students to read with speed, ease and fluency.
3. To make students read with comprehension.
4. To get students' vocabulary expanded.
5. According to Ryburn "The aims of silent reading are pleasure and profit: to

❖ Extensive Reading

- Extensive reading is an approach to language learning in which long text and a large amount of material are read by the students for general understanding.
- For acquiring information or for pleasure.

- Reading of novels, magazines, newspaper

❖ AIM Extensive reading

1.) The main aim of extensive reading is intellectual, i.e., to understand the meaning as quickly as possible.
2. To increase passive vocabulary.
3. To develop a taste for reading. According to Thompson and Wyatt
4. It is a quick process
5. Theme of the texts are neglected
6. Based in the vocabulary identification

❖ Intensive Reading

- Intensive Reading is a reading method wherein learners are supposed to read the short text carefully and deeply so as to gain maximum understanding.
- For understanding the literal meaning of the text.
- Reading of textbooks.
- Intensive Reading can be understood as the reading method which requires intimate study of a text with the objective of getting its literary or linguistic meaning.

❖ Aims of Intensive Reading

1. To enable students to speak English correctly.
2. To improve and extend their knowledge and command over English.
3. To enable them to use English language without fear and to develop in them the habit of thinking in English.
4. To increase students' active vocabulary.
5. To foster in them a taste for the study of English.
6. To concentrate upon language.

Extensive Reading ❖ helps students develop reading fluency ❖ For general understanding	Intensive Reading ❖ helps students to develop reading skills, vocabulary and in depth ❖ comprehension. Detailed meaning from the text along with linguistic understanding

❖ Pre-Reading stage

- In this stage, students think about what they know about a topic and predict what they will read further. It is carried out through certain activities so as to:
 1. Establish the purpose for reading.
 2. Predict what they are going to read.
 3. Establish what they know about the topic.
 4. Increase students motivation to read.

❖ Some examples of pre-reading activities are

- Discussion: In this activity, the students are encouraged to have a discussion about the topic of reading.
- Brain storming: In this activity, the whole class is given five minutes to brainstorm ideas related to the topic of reading.
- Pictures: Here, the teacher selects three or four pictures that relate to the topic of reading. The students work in group to connect the pictures and try to guess what the reading will be about.
- The Title: Here, the students are asked to make guess and work together to pool their knowledge of the title given.

❖ While Reading stage: In this stage, the students focus on different aspects of the text and its comprehension. It is carried out through certain activities so as to help learners comprehend and observe different thematic as well as linguistic elements in the text.

❖ Post-Reading stage:

- In this stage the students understand texts further through critical analysis. It is, carried out through various activities to so as to help students use the newly learned words and ideas.

❖ Some common examples of post-reading activities.

- Creative writing: In this activity, the students can be asked to create a story, poem or news report by choosing in 10-15 words from the text.
- Creative Discussions: For this activity the teachers can prepare four or five simple questions and ask students to talk about those questions for 3 minutes in groups.
- Quiz your classmates: This activity can help the teacher to determine how much students understood during the reading. Here, the students will prepare 5 questions about what they have read and ask those questions to each other in groups.

❖ Skimming - To "Skim" means "to take a quick glance".

Skimming is reading rapidly in order to get a general overview of the material. It involves reading out the maximum content in minimum time.

❖ Scanning - To "scan" means "to look for something". Scanning refers to a selective reading method generally used by the reader when he/she is in search of some specific information contained in the passage without reading the text thoroughly. When we scan material we already know what we are looking for, we just have to spot and swoop it down.

Skimming

1. The reader reads the text quickly to have an idea of the concept, subject matter, main points and the go gist without paying close attention to the excessive detail.
2. Quick reading method
3. Reading maximum amount of material in the minimum time
4. Used to get acquainted with the text that have not been read yet.

Scanning

1. The reader moves his eyes over its entire text in order to locate specific keywords which he/she has in mind.
2. Selective reading method.
3. Method of searching out something in a factual manner.
4. The reader has the knowledge of what he/ she is looking for in the given text

❖ Difference between Skimming and Scanning can be observed with the following table

❖ Writing – Writing is a medium of communication that represents language through the inscription of signs and symbols.

❖ Notice: Notice is written or Statement that gives information, Instruction or warning to people.
