S-4 Understanding of the self

Unit- 1: Understanding Oneself as a Person

POINT - 1 Curiosity to understand one's own personality: Who am I , ' Self ' vs. ' Ego' , Aspects of Identity

- ❖ Persona - The different qualities found in a person are called personality traits.
 - Every person has some special qualities or characteristics which no other person has. Due to these qualities and characteristics, every person is different from each other. The set of these qualities of a person is called the personality of the person.
 - A person's attractiveness is determined by his personality.

❖ Definitions of personality

1. Personality is a coordinated form of qualities. --- Guilford
2. Personality is the overall characteristics of an individual's behavior . Woodworth
3. Personality is related to those physical and internal instincts of a human being , on the basis of which a person adjusts with his environment - Allport

❖ Stage of personality development:

- 1) Gestational stage
- 2) Infancy
- 3) Childhood
- 4) puberty
- 5) Adulthood

- ❖ Personality traits:- There are five personality traits:

1. Openness
2. Consciousness
3. Extroversion

4. Consensus 5. Muscular dystrophy

❖ Young classified personality from a psychological point of view.
He mentioned this in his book Psychological Types

❖ Young has described three personality types

1. Introverted Personality

2. extrovert personality

3. ambivert Persona

1. Introvert personality- People whose behaviour, habits and qualities are not visible externally have an introvert personality. These people are calm by nature and always remain lost in their own world. Their interest is in themselves. It just happens.

❖ introvert personality traits

- Such people often speak less.
- These people think and contemplate a lot.
- These people are good writers but they are not good speakers.
- They do not laugh, joke, criticize or indulge in useless conversations.
- They are studious and contemplative.
- Their behavior is obedient
- These people get frightened easily
- They are truthful towards their duties.
- Keep your feelings limited.
- These people become scientists , philosophers, researchers and writers etc. in the future.

2. Extroverted Personality: A person with an extrovert personality focuses on the outside world .

- People whose behavior, habits and qualities are externally manifested

❖ Extrovert personality characteristics:

- These people are optimistic.
- These people are also egoistic and uncontrolled.
- These people influence others By doing this, you can easily clear your confusion.
- These people are worry-free and believe in living life happily.
- They take a lot of interest in social life.
- are efficient in practical life .
- become future businessmen, political leaders , actors, sportsmen etc.

3. Ambidextrous personality - Very few people are of this type who are completely introvert or extrovert. Most people are of this type who are a mixture of both and display their personality according to the needs of life. A person with this type of personality has both introvert and extrovert qualities.

- Ambidextrous people can bring introverted qualities into their thinking and extroverted qualities into their work. For example, a person can be a good writer as well as a good worker.

❖ Curiosity to understand your personality

- In order to develop an understanding of one's personality, it is essential for a person to ask himself , ' Who am I?' If a person has knowledge of his personal capabilities , then he develops the confidence to face the difficulties of life and remains calm and patient even in difficult situations of life .

➤ When a person expresses curiosity to explain his personality , who he is - there can be many answers to it: -

1. I am a new creation.
2. I am a friend of God
3. I am a child of God
4. I am a citizen of heaven. The
5. I am a little soul sent by God to this mortal world

❖ Who am I ?

- With the birth of a human being, he gets confused in various relationships that who am I ? This curiosity is yogic. The body is like a garment. When one leaves this body, another is found. After death, the human body merges into the universe. Hence, this question remains as it is, who am I ? - This is a favourite subject of Vedanta.
- Have we ever asked ourselves who am I really ? Am I a father, a husband , a friend , an engineer , a traveller or a patient ? The truth is that by virtue of having a son we are a father. By virtue of having a wife we are a husband. We are travelling in a train. So we are travellers. All our identities, whatever we are assuming , are all based on others. So then who are we ourselves ? A father , a husband or a traveller ?

❖ Who am I ? Look at this question from two perspectives

1. In relation to human beings , who am I ?
2. With respect to my inner mind or soul , who am I ?

❖ What is my existence in relation to human beings ?

- In our example , ' Alok ' has an identity in this world. But when the people who know him are no longer alive, Alok will slowly be forgotten. After 3 months , the bank also asks you for KYC documents to prove yourself . Like other humans, you are also a human being , not an animal.

❖ With respect to my inner mind or soul , what is my existence ?

- ❖ Within you, you know something about yourself. Like your own will, like your own thoughts or your own perspective! 1 There is you (Alok). No one else is like you. You are a unique person in your own right.

❖ Self vs Ingo :-

- Self refers to the self. A person's self is his consciousness about his own personality. Self refers to our daily life behavior. Self is a person's belief and understanding about himself.
- Ego means ego. Attaching 'I' to any person , thing or thought is ego like I am like this , I am like that , I can do this.

Difference between self and ego: -

• Self:-

1. It creates self-confidence in the person himself.
2. The self is associated with positive emotions.
3. culture the person himself
4. thinks about himself in a situation of social interaction is called self.

❖ Important:-

1. An egoistic person creates a narrow mindset.
2. Ego is linked to negative emotions
3. The ego has made the person angry.
4. Ego is a group of reactions which include direct thinking and remembering. It is a reaction for internal growth.

❖ Aspects of assimilation

- Asmita means the character of a person
- How is a person's behaviour , what are his qualities , what are his demerits , what are his thoughts , all these aspects together form identity.
- Individuals and communities struggle to achieve their identity and awareness of identity saves them from becoming directionless.
- In the modern era, a person has to struggle to achieve his identity. In today's time, the question of identity has become more complicated and achieving it has become difficult.
- Any person wants to live a safe and respectable life in his society and community . The lifestyle and thinking of a person is very important. This predominates if a person has negative thinking and behaves negatively towards the society and community. So this directly creates a threat to the identity of that person. Due to which he starts feeling insecure and condemnable.

❖ Aspects of assimilation

- ❖ ' Asmita ' is used in two forms:-

1. Social identity
2. Personal identity.

- ❖ social identity we mean the individual's sense of self through which he considers himself a member of a group. Toffel (1979) has proposed that the group can be a social class , family , cricket team, etc. in which he feels proud to belong.

- ❖ personal identity we mean that specific identity of a person which remains stable despite the passage of time. This means that under certain necessary and sufficient conditions, it can be said about a person that he is the same person who was at that time.

❖ How identity is formed

➤ internal

➤ identity

1. External identity - Inner identity is how a person behaves, how he thinks, what are his thoughts. This completely depends on him. And it is this thinking that determines the identity of a person.
2. External identity - What kind of society does a person like to live in? What are his ideals? What is his thinking? What does he believe in? What are his thoughts? This completely depends on him. And his life also gets affected by this. Hence, this plays an important role in the formation of that person's identity.

❖ The need and importance of identity

1. Identity is a concept through which a person creates his own identity.
2. It is through this that a person relates to his life. 1 Identity and connection with other people
3. What type of person someone is, we can understand it only through identity.
4. Identity is the basis of identification of a person's socio-cultural background.
5. What kind of people are there in our society, who belongs to which caste, which class, which gender, etc. Identity plays an important role in dividing us.

POINT-2 Write your self portrait

- When a person interviews himself, he develops an idea about the talent , ability , qualities , and defects hidden within him . This is called the self-concept of that particular person.
- Self portrait is a medium of self-evaluation. It is like finding oneself in the mirror. Through self portrait, one gets information about the activities, behaviour , qualities , characteristics and actions of the self .
- Through self-portrait, trainee teachers can be successful in knowing themselves. Also, they can be able to develop their abilities , capabilities and skills etc. Self-portrait can help the trainee teacher to review their effectiveness during the school experience program .
- This is a kind of positive process through which the trainee teacher critically assesses and evaluates his ability , talent, concern , perception and attitude.

❖ What can be written or is written in a self portrait :

1. introduce themselves
2. stating the idea
3. stating the merits and demerits
4. State your interest
5. analyze yourself and tell about your personality.
6. You were a positive , negative nature person.

POINT -3 Understanding self-expression, self-acceptance , self-respect Self-expression means expressing your thoughts

❖ Self-expression

- Self expression means that a person expresses his ideas to others.

- Through self-expression a person expresses his thoughts in various fields. The expression should be helpful and meaningful so that a conclusion is drawn. Therefore, for meaningful self-expression a person must have an understanding of self-expression
- Self expression refers to the way a person puts forward his ideas to others.
- Through self expression a person expresses his ideas in various fields
- can understand their self-expression by knowing themselves , by understanding themselves. A teacher should have self-expression that what is my duty.

- plays the role of a key to achieving mental peace for you .
- Self-respect is a feeling that comes from understanding the work and accepting the challenges. If the feeling of self-respect is awakened within you, then you respect and accept everyone with ease.
- . A teacher faces many challenges. Only a teacher has the ability to fight those challenges successfully and patiently. Only after overcoming them does the feeling of self-respect arise.

❖ Pride

- Pride leads to the downfall of a person . A person who is proud has an ego. 1. A proud person always has a feeling of fear. Pride is negative. And it slowly destroys a person.
- Pride means – only ' I ' can do it.

❖ Difference between self-respect and arrogance

1. Self-respecting people are always confident , while arrogant people never have confidence in themselves.
2. Self-respecting people think that everyone should be treated equally , whereas arrogant people always consider others inferior to themselves.
3. Self-respecting people have a stable mind. Whereas arrogant people always seem to be distracted.
4. Self-respecting people want to achieve success through hard work , whereas arrogant people are opportunists.
5. Self-respecting people are fully aware of their nature , whereas arrogant people have no control over their nature.
6. Self-respecting people consider their criticism to be beneficial , whereas arrogant people do not tolerate their criticism.

7. A self-respecting person is always aware of his abilities , while an arrogant person is overconfident about his abilities.
8. An arrogant person wants that only his words should be heard and believed and does not give importance to the words and thoughts of others , whereas self-respecting people do not impose their thoughts on others.

❖ Motivation

- Motivation is an internal force that inspires a person to work. The stronger the motivation of a person, the stronger will be his learning ability. It has also been said: - " The motivation is better than "learning".
- Example:- Interest , desire , self-respect , social prestige and special achievement are the main examples of motivational awards.
- Motivation always creates curiosity in students to learn and keeps them constantly active , that is why B.F. Skinner has described motivation as the highway to learning .

❖ Motivation is mainly divided into two parts:-

- 1) intrinsic motivation
- 2) external motivation

❖ Internal Motivation :

- Those internal forces which motivate a person's behaviour are called internal motivation.
- Intrinsic motivation refers to self-interest. When a learner learns a lesson because he is interested in it, it is called intrinsic motivation. Example: - Hunger, thirst , sleep , love and work.

❖ External Motivation :

- Extrinsic motivation Any pre-determined objective which a person aims to achieve is called extrinsic motivation
- External motivation refers to the encouragement that is given to the student from the external environment. In this, work is done not for mental happiness but to achieve some goal and to get reward etc. and to achieve happiness as a goal in the future.

❖ Characteristics of Motivation

1. Motivation has many characteristics but first of all it inspires us to reach our set goals.

Unit-2: Awareness of one's identity

Point 1 Identity of teachers: Contemporary discussion The concept of an ' ideal ' teacher-

❖ 's Identity Teacher : -

- The one who imparts education is called a teacher. And the one who can awaken the desire to learn in the mind of the student is called a teacher.
- Teachers play an important role in building our society because this society is made up of those children whose primary education is the responsibility of a teacher.
- It is the teacher who , along with making a good citizen of the society, also brings about the best development in the children.
- The all-round development of children is done by a teacher only. The teacher also imparts vocational education to the children ; so that they can use it in their daily life.
- provide proper education , motivation , tolerance , behavioral change and guidance to the children.
- If any child does good work in his life or becomes a better person, then the teacher definitely helps in that.
- In modern times, the teacher was not considered merely a person to teach but rather he was considered a lamp of knowledge, the light of life and equal to God.
- is considered only as a government servant who teaches.

❖ Concept of an Ideal Teacher .

- A good and effective teacher is one who does not bow down to any wrong thing in front of students , principal and others . He does not tolerate any kind of injustice and does not compromise with any wrong thing. Only the teacher who is aware of his duties and rights is able to protect his self-respect.

7. Qualitative and quantitative classification of teacher behaviour is possible.

❖ NCF (National curriculum framework)- 2005:

- The National Curriculum Framework 2005 of India expects a teacher to be a facilitator of children's learning , helping them to construct knowledge.

- A teacher also acts as a learner , counselor, manager , evaluator and innovator
- Teacher as facilitator and helper.
- The role of teachers is supposed to view learners as active participants in their learning rather than as mere recipients of knowledge
- According to NCP 2005 the role of the teacher is that of a facilitator.

Point 3 Understanding your beliefs , thoughts and behaviour: understanding the various dimensions and changes in them

❖ hold

- Role : A teacher has to understand his beliefs , thought process and behaviour in order to develop his identity in accordance with professional expectations. A teacher's beliefs reflect his orientation towards himself and the profession. He adopts subject knowledge and the pedagogical process accordingly through his thought process. His behaviour is determined by his thought process.

❖ contemplation

- Thinking is the mental process of thinking , which arises due to a problem and continues till the end of the problem. To make the meaning of thinking more clear, scholars have expressed their views.
- "Thinking is the cognitive aspect of mental activity, or mental activity relating to things in the mind." Ross

Point 4 Identifying one's role as a teacher and understanding its challenges: in the context of school culture

❖ Identifying one's own role as a teacher

1. Teachers should identify themselves and fulfil their role and responsibilities in nation building.
2. To identify himself, a teacher must first understand and evaluate himself.
3. Teachers should know their own positive and negative aspects."
4. The classroom environment should be moulded as per the studies and the right direction should be provided to the students.
5. the students adapt to the society by making them aware of morality and social values.
6. The teacher provides education in a way that helps in the development of all aspects of the students.
7. A teacher has a lot of responsibility. Because he has to not only develop the intellectual , moral , psychological and physical development of the children , but also social , character and emotional development is also a duty of the teacher today.
8. The role of the teacher is important in the all-round development of students.

❖ Teachers' understanding of challenges

1. Getting students to do their homework.
2. Making the teaching learning process enjoyable Preparing question papers
3. Creating a favorable classroom environment.
4. Children sit quietly in the class or make noise. Pay attention to this.
5. Lack of independent environment

6. It is also a challenge to maintain one's identity , one's respect , one's dignity in front of a teacher .

Unit 3: Understanding one's actions and life goals point 1 Develop your life goals and understand their physical , emotional and spiritual aspects

- The best way to develop your life goal is to first set your goal, know all the ways to reach the goal and achieve your goal by walking on the right path. Emotional and spiritual perspective plays an important role in shaping your life because until the reflection of that goal is not seen in your body language or your behavior, you will not achieve your life goal.

Knowing the perceptions of your colleagues , students , community etc. about yourself .

- ❖ Knowing the perceptions of your colleagues , students , community about yourself:-

1. Be trustworthy - If a teacher has a trustworthy relationship with his colleagues, he can know the perception of his colleagues about him .

ii. Good listener - A teacher who is a good listener i.e. if he listens to his colleagues and understands their problems, then he will know the perception about him by his colleagues.

iii. When a teacher cooperates with his colleagues as much as possible , a bond of understanding develops among them and they can understand each other.

iv. Come forward to help – If you know technical skills then you should come forward to teach technical skills to your colleagues which will increase mutual understanding.

v. Reality - You should accept the reality for yourself and your friends so that your friends can understand the ideology on their own.

- has a different opinion about their teachers . For example, if a student considers a teacher as his ideal , then his opinion about that teacher is positive and some students do not have such a good opinion about some teachers. Therefore, a teacher can adopt many methods to know the opinion of students about himself, which are as follows:-
 - i. To create a democratic environment.
 - ii. Playing the role of friend and guide.
 - iii. The teacher should be proficient in his subject.
 - iv. Having general conversation with students.
 - V. Solving the individual problems of students.
 - V. Connecting emotionally with students.
 - vii. To develop the feeling of camaraderie among students.

Point 3 Writing a daily reflective diary and using it to understand yourself

- Reflective diary is a personal document reflecting the educational behaviour of a teacher. How a teacher successfully deals with his classroom behaviour and the challenges he faces is reflected in the reflective diary of a teacher. Through reflective diary , a person's personality can be clearly seen in all its aspects.

and what not to write in a reflective diary :

- ❖ What to write:- In the diary, we write the account of our daily work and the frequency of thoughts. It is best to write positive feelings in it so that our morale , self-confidence and self-confidence increase.
- ❖ What not to write: - Diary is our personal property. But we should not write anything that can blackmail us or take advantage of our emotions. Do not write small problems in it , write things in the form of major points.

❖ Importance of daily diary

1. Self Assessment
2. Time Management
3. work planning
4. Goal Setting
5. Improve memory
6. Control over emotions
7. Positive Quotes
8. Improvement in language expression

❖ Objectives of Reflective Diary –

- The aim of the reflective diary is to bring oneself in the right direction, to write one's day-to-day events , work , behavior and through this provide an opportunity to analyze and evaluate oneself. One has to become aware of what shortcomings one has and how this deficiency can be improved. Its main aim is to provide a platform in this direction.

❖ Uses of Reflective Diary :-

- A diary is a true friend of the self. We write it every day. When we are unable to present our thoughts to others, we write them halfway. Writing a diary is an important task in itself , through this we can easily understand about ourselves.

❖ Features of Reflective Diary:-

- 1) In a daily reflective diary, events , facts, and a person's actions and behavior are recorded.
- 2) Daily reflective diary as a constructive process is accepted as a creative process because in it a person creates new practical rules and principles after structuring and analyzing his thoughts.
- 3) When a person writes a diary, he makes various types of arguments.
- 4) There is no pressure on the person to write a diary ; he writes for his own spiritual peace.
- 5) In this the person does his own work and self-evaluates himself.

❖ This is how we make a reflective diary

- 1) First of all we write date, day and page number in our diary
- 2) After this we write the time subject.
- 3) After that, write your own thoughts by including the points related to your positive and negative aspects.

Point 4 Discussion on inspirational stories , films , etc. in the workshop

- Whenever it comes to stories for children , every story has some lesson or inspiration in itself. Whereas , when we only talk about inspirational stories , then only those stories are included which inspire children to do good deeds and behavior in life.

- There are many such films through which children, society and country are inspired and various good things are shown to them through which good spiritual qualities develop in children who can use them in their future life and take their life towards a better path.

Point 5 Recognize your strengths , showcase them, and understand ways to use them in teaching.

1. Introduce yourself first
2. Recognise your talent
3. Know about your weakness
4. You can also seek professional help
5. Identify your strengths and display and use them in your teaching

thank you so much
